Frequently Asked Questions: Commercial and Institutional Power Producer Program

on a trailing three-year average of fuel cost. This rate will be reviewed and adjusted (if applicable) annually.

7. How will CIPP participants be paid for the power they generate?

QEC will use Measurement Canada approved Revenue Quality Meters to measure how much power CIPP participants generate and sell to the corporation. This will be measured and paid on a monthly basis.

8. How do I apply for the CIPP program?

To apply for the CIPP program, please visit www.qec.nu.ca to download the application form and guidelines. Those interested in the CIPP program must consult with QEC before purchasing renewable energy generation systems.

9. Are there programs for customers who are not eligible for the CIPP program?

QEC's Net Metering Program allows residential customers and one municipal account per community to generate their own electricity from renewable energy sources and integrate it into the corporation's grids. For more information about the Net Metering program please visit: www.qec.nu.ca.

QEC is also developing a larger Independent Power Producer program that is designed for community scale power projects and is being tailored for local ownership, Inuit participation and economic development.

10. Is QEC offering any subsidies for those participating in the CIPP program?

QEC does not have a subsidy program for the CIPP program. Any subsidy provided by QEC would contribute to increasing customer rates for Nunavummiut. Those interested in the CIPP program are encouraged to research external funding initiatives.

11. Can QEC recommend any renewable generation equipment suppliers?

QEC cannot endorse renewable generation system suppliers. It is up to customers to research their options for renewable generation installation to ensure that their system equipment meets all applicable codes and standards.

12. Where can I find more information?

For general program information, please contact our Customer Care department at 1-866-710-4200 or customercare@qec.nu.ca. More information can also be found online at www.qec.nu.ca.
