

A detailed map of a residential area, likely in Inuvik, Northwest Territories. The map shows a grid of streets and numerous buildings, many of which are numbered. A prominent yellow line runs diagonally across the map, possibly representing a main utility corridor. Overlaid on the map are several utility lines: purple lines forming a network, orange lines connecting specific buildings, and red lines forming another network. Several buildings are labeled with codes: RAN4-D7, RAN4-D6g, RAN4-D4, RAN4-D5, RAN1-D1, RAN1-D2, RAN1-TP12, and SP. Three red-bordered text boxes provide information about specific buildings: the Healing Centre (Mamiharvik / Centre de guérison), the Old Arena (Utuaqqaq Haakirvik / Ancien aréna), and Service Canada (Kivgaktiujut Kanatami / Service Canada). Arrows from these boxes point to their respective locations on the map.
